

Fall in Love with the South

Among the foothills of the Andes Mountains, grapes originally from the Old World have planted new roots in the sunshine-bathed terroirs of Mendoza; over 6,000 miles from their homeland.

It was a true romance for Malbec, Torrontés and the South. These vines have thrived in Mendoza, developing their full potential and ultimately becoming the most symbolic varietals of their new home, Argentina.